

Biographie Congduc Pham

Professor of computer science, University of Pau, France

Dr Congduc Pham is a Professor of Computer Science at the University of Pau (France) in the LIUPPA laboratory in which is served as director from 2006 to 2009. He obtained his Ph.D in Computer Science in 1997 at the LIP6 Laboratory (Laboratoire d'Informatique de Paris 6), University Pierre and Marie Curie. He also received his Habilitation in 2003 from University Claude Bernard Lyon 1. From 1998 to 2005, he was associate professor at the university of Lyon, member of the INRIA RESO project in the LIP laboratory at the ENS Lyon. His current research interests include wireless sensor networking, Internet of Thing, MAC layer mechanisms, congestion control and QoS for grid/cloud computing. He served as Guest Editor for Future Generation Computer System and Annals of Telecom. He serves as Program Vice-Chair for IEEE GreenCom 2010, workshop Co-Chair for IEEE WiMob 2011 and Track Chair for IEEE WiMob 2015. He has published more than 130 papers in international conferences and journals.